MR. HADDOCK,

IMPRESSED with Gratitude for past Favours, begs leave to acquaint the Nobility, Gentry, and the Public in general, that, having fixed his residence in London, he is determined to exert himself (as ORGAN BUILDER and MACHINIST) to the utmost scope of his Abilities, to bring forward such Inventions (both Useful and Entertaining) as will, he flatters himself, meet that Approbation hitherto experienced.

The ADDITIONS and IMPROVEMENTS now made to his former EXHIBITION, added to the neatness with which he has fitted up his Theatre, he humbly hopes will attract the usual resort. The different Pieces are introduced in the following Order, First,

THE NEW SPELLING AUTOMATON,

A Figure about Three Feet high, representing a Female Child, will be brought to a Table, where an Alphabet is placed, on which it will Spell any given Word. Second,

THE WRITING AUTOMATON,

About the Size of a Boy of Five Years old, will be also brought to a Table, and set to write any Word, Words, or Figures, in a round legible Hand. Third,

THE FRUITERY.

At the Gate of which the PORTER stands, and when desired, rings the Bell; then the FRUITRESS comes out to attend the Company with any Fruit demanded, at pleasure; it will likewise take in Flowers, or any small Articles, and produce them again as called for. The different Fruits will be given in charge to a WATCH DOG, which barks on their being taken away, and ceases on their being returned. Next, the little CHIMNEY SWEEPER, comes from behind the House, enters the Side Door, presently ascends the Chimney, and cries "Sweep!" several times, then descends and goes off with his Bag full of Soot. Fourth,

The LIQUOR MERCHANT and WATER SERVER.

The LIQUOR MERCHANT stands at a Cask, from which it will draw, at the choice of the Company, any of the following Liquors—Rum, Brandy, Gin, Whisky, Port, Mountain, Shrub, Raisin Wine, Peppermint, Anniseed, Carraway, and Usquebaugh. The WATER SERVER stands at a Pump to supply Water when ordered, and pumps, or ceases, at the desire of any person present. And Fifth,

THE HIGHLAND ORACLE.

A Figure in the Highland Dress, which gives a rational Answer, by Motion, to any Question proposed, calculates Sums in Arithmetic, by striking its Sword on a Targe, and gives the amount of any number of Yards, Pounds, &c. at any given Price; strikes the Hours and Minutes, whenever asked, and also strikes the difference of Time between any Watch and the Time-piece on which it stands; beats Time to Music, &c.

The MACHINE ORGAN will play occasionally between the Pieces.

THE RUNNING ATTENDANTS.

Mr. HADDOCK finding the Company in the Boxes incommoded by his handing the Fruits, Liquors, or Written Papers to the Gallery, has constructed two Balconies, one at each side, which extends to the Gallery, each of which contains a Figure, that immediately attends the Company with any thing required from the Exhibition.

The Table the different Pieces will be placed on contains an ORGAN, lately made (and invented only) by the Proprietor, and is what he terms

THE TABLE ORGAN.

Which he makes for Sale, of different kinds and prices. The utility of that portable and elegant Instrument needs no eulogium, for what renders other keyed Instruments an inconvenience, is done away in this MULTUM IN PARVO, as it answers every intent of a Breakfast, a Card, or a Tea Table, and still can be used as an Organ. It might be deemed one of the most convenient Instruments for small Concert (or Catch and Glee) Parties. He hopes a sweetness in Tone, a delicacy in Touch, a portability in Construction, and a reasonable Charge, will be an inducement to Purchasers. Organs of every description made and repaired.

Tickets for the Exhibition, and Places in the Boxes taken at the Theatre.

N. B. The Exhibition lasts nearly Two Hours.
